

OCTOMOM

ASLI PERKER

Dennis' mother took care of everything. She was cooking, talking on the phone, watering flowers, typing on the computer, cleaning, preparing lemonade and playing ball with Dennis all at the same time. His mother was not just a mother. She was an octomom! Anyone watching her for a bit could easily have noticed that she has eight arms, just like an octopus.

One day Dennis and his mom set out on a journey and everything began to change slowly.

Octomom is a story with lots of surprises and cheeriness that proves the saying, "It takes a village to raise a child."

Dennis thought that his mother was the perfect mom. She was so skilled; she cooked, put the groceries in the fridge, watered the flowers, worked on her laptop, cleaned the house, prepared Dennis lemonade and played ball with him. All at the same time—even talking on the phone!

She always got things done on time. Dennis felt wonderful about this.

One of Dennis' favorite things was to have his mother read to him.
That day, he picked up a book from the shelf and took it to his mother. He was very excited.
Because the person on the cover looked just like his mom.

He ran to her and yelled:
“Mooooom look! This book is about you!”

His mother let out a big laugh.
“Hahahaha! You mean to say I look like an octopus?
You are so funny Dennis.”

Dennis suddenly understood it all. His mother was an octopus but she didn't even know it. As far as he understood, being an octopus was not a good thing for a mother.

The next day,
Dennis decided to look into this more closely.

He grabbed a pencil and paper.
He followed his mom all day, drawing and taking notes of everything she did.
